

Animals in Need

Who needs our help?

Whenever an animal in need – whether bird or mammal – is found in the greater Dyer Island area at sea or on land, Wilfred Chivell of Dyer Island Cruises, Marine Dynamics and the Dyer Island Conservation Trust is called in. Since 1998, these organizations have been involved in the care of over 90% all animals in need from De Kelders to Die Damme. Animals are collected, cared for, and expert help sought if needed.

Over time, we have established ourselves as the Call Centre for all animals in need. In this way we know what happens to the animals in our area, and can investigate the causes of animal injuries to minimise them in the future.

Oiled, sick and injured African Penguins are collected from Dyer Island and transported to SANCCOB, a seabird rehabilitation facility in Cape Town, where the birds are cared for before being released back into the wild again.

How?

Dyer Island Cruises, Marine Dynamics, and the Dyer Island Conservation Trust, supply the financing, equipment, logistics, organising etc. needed for animal care.
